We are working hard at school to develop our Hawks' level of independence. When a student can demonstrate independence or persevere through a hard task, it is magical to see how their confidence explodes.

There are so many ways in which you can build upon what we are working on here at school. While I understand that it is often easier to just do the task for a child rather than watch them fumble through, take forever, and possibly fail, which inevitably results in a meltdown, supporting your child through these times is critical to developing these skills long term.
